These words always seem like such appropriate words for summer. This time, as we watch the earth come to such life around us, never ceases to bring amazement. God’s world blossoms with such abundance and “life” is what God always intended for us - abundant life!

So as we come to our summer season, we will relax into our summer worship services with a hymn sing to begin each service and spending time in each of our two buildings. I would encourage you, if you’ve not yet tried worship in ‘the other church’, to come and enjoy with us.

And while I am away, you will be blessed with Rev. Jessie Jansen and Ruth Coverdale, to date. So I know the messages will be inspiring.

All of this will lead us into our August Vacation Bible School for the children and our coming season of September-to-June worship, with Rally Sunday, Thanksgiving, Remembrance Sunday, Advent, Christmas, Lent, Easter and Pentecost.

There will be many things happening to revive our spirits and renew our faith with God’s grace moving among us, so that we will always “make a joyful noise and worship our God with gladness!”

Peace & blessings,
Rev. Barbara

A Special Thank You From Incoming Nelson Chair

As incoming Chair of Council for Nelson United Church, I would like to take this opportunity to thank Shirley Bottaro, our outgoing (in many ways) Chair for the wonderful and very caring job she has done.

We are very appreciative of the leadership and tireless hours that Shirley has dedicated to the work of our Church and our Council.

Shirley is a great example of what a Chair can accomplish and I look forward to following in her very capable footsteps.

As many of you at Nelson know, Dale and I spend the summer months of July and August at our cottage at Sauble Beach. Shirley has kindly agreed to represent Nelson Church Council until I return in September.

Faithfully submitted,
Barb McKeown

From The Chair Of Lowville Council

When I look back on these last couple of months, I remember so many wonderful events. The Scott Woods Concert was amazing. The house was packed with friends and family. Scott made sure that there was something for everyone and you could see that everyone was having a good time. My grandson was clapping to the music and pretending to lead the band.

Shortly after was the Pork Dinner and what a feast it was . . . Roast pork, turnip, mashed potatoes, peas and coleslaw and I had better not forget the pie and ice cream. All lovingly made and served by members of our congregation and recruits from Nelson. Again, a wonderful turnout from friends, family and neighbors. People were already at the door before 5 pm and our last guests left shortly after 7 pm.

Although these events haven't happened as I am writing, I know that Doors Open Burlington will highlight our wonderful heritage building and our guides and UCW ladies will make our guests feel welcome and proudly share our heritage. Next comes the Strawberry Social on June 24th . . .yummy!

Church is the people. We have a wonderful group of people who see a need and joyfully step forward. I would like to thank Marilyn and Owen for their seemingly tireless effort to pull the concert and dinners together. It is hard work and takes endless hours of planning and preparation.

Also a huge thank you to all those who step forward to do everything from decorating the tables to washing up at the end of the evening. In the end, everything comes together because everyone comes together.

Music has always held a special place in our hearts at Lowville. Gordon and Armeda have brought their special talents to our worship. It is a delight to hear our choir accompanied by Gordon's violin or Armeda at the keyboard. As well, it is such a pleasure to see and hear many of our youth join in, in a duet or playing a solo as the collection is being taken up. Our young people have so much to offer.

Monthly, twenty or more ladies of the UCW gather for a light lunch, fellowship, devotion and program. The collection is gathered and used to support our church as well as charities. In times of funerals, Shirley organizes the members to prepare and serve sandwiches and desserts for the family gathering after the service. It is wonderful to be able to provide this kindness at such a difficult time. Dennis and Margariet continue to deliver food and needed articles to the Wesley Mission. Dianne is taking pledges for the 'Case For Kids' walk that raises money to support child and youth programs at Wesley. She hoped that she could encourage others to walk with her. Harvey Miller left a bequest to the Mission and Outreach Ministry that he hoped would be used to support Mission and Service. He and others from our church were part of a team that went to Chile to build schools and houses. After the earthquake, Dave Haley received e-mails with pictures of the devastation that happened in the village . . . he hoped we might be able to support this village in some way.

Presently, the committee is researching how to best support working through United Church Mission and Services. Many in the congregation were very generous in their support for Haitian earthquake relief.

So many needs . . . Our Trustees continue to care for the building making tough decisions on what should be done and when. They also have the extra responsibility for the manse and being a landlord is not always easy. One Tuesday a month, a group of men and women spend the day doing all the work that keeps our building in good repair. Thank you.

I need to thank June for the never-ending job of getting us to sign for 'after church' treats. I know we need nagging but our fellowship after church is a very special time, and Allan and Connie who saw the need for a Bible study, and George and the others who lead the service at Mount Nemo Nursing Home, and Ruth and the prayer chain that keeps us in their hearts and minds, and I am sure I have forgotten several bodies . . . Thank you all. You make Lowville a wonderful place to be.

Soon summer will be upon us. The worship committee has done some excellent planning for our summer services. I look forward to seeing you at both Nelson and at Lowville.

Blessings . . . .

Bev Balch, Chair of Lowville Council

Co-Chair of Lowville-Nelson Ministries

Vacation Bible School

On Monday, August 16th we will "POWER UP WITH JESUS" at our Vacation Bible School. It will run through Friday from 9:00 am to 11:30 am each morning. If you know of any children who would enjoy a time of story, song, exercise, food and crafts, please have their parents call the church at (905) 335-0911. It's intended for Junior Kindergarten to Grade 6. There is no cost but all donations will be gratefully accepted!

Come! Share the joy! Share the praise! Share the faith! As we power up with Jesus!

From The Desk of the Chair of Council

As I sit at my computer preparing to write my final report for the newsletter as Chair of Council, I am finding myself at a loss for words. I can't believe how quickly two years have gone by. I can only say that this role as chair of Nelson Council and Co-Chair of the Joint Council for our United Ministry has been made easy by the work of so many others.

Special Thanks to:

- Rev. Barbara who has been our Minister now for 5 plus years. Her deep love of Christ is so evident in all her words, thoughts and deeds. She is an example to all of us and certainly a mentor to me.
- Rev. Jessie Jansen who so ably fills in for Rev. Barbara sometimes at very short notice.
- The Trustees under the leadership of Bill Vivian for managing our Financial portfolio and advising on when we can spend extra money on the infrastructure.
- Don Hunt and the Property and Maintenance Ministry for keeping the Church updated with new furnaces, new paint job, new paved parking lot to mention just a few things that have happened while I was chair.
- Dale McKeown and the Sunday School teachers who so faithfully bring spiritual guidance to children whom we are depending on to carry on to work in this Church.
- Joan Hunt and Bev Greer for organizing and planning special events e.g. Annual Bazaar Apple Pie Making.
- Doreen Vivian along with her other members of the Pastoral Care Ministry which includes visits, cards and favours.
- Eileen Fuller who so competently works as the recording secretary. (Eileen, you will be happy to know Barb will not lose minutes like I did).
- Bev Greer for all your innovative ways of reminding us of our main purpose as a church to reach out into the community and beyond.
- Barb McKeown and Joan Hunt who represent Nelson on the Joint Worship Ministry. Every Sunday there is evidence of your contribution to the Worship Service, from organizing supply ministers, putting up decorations, organizing the schedule for ushers and Communion servers and that just mentions a few tasks involved in your Ministry.
- Bill Vivian, Judy Riebot, Gord Greer (soon to be replaced by Sandy McKeown) for their competent management of the budget.

- Jennifer Keenan and the choir for their uplifting contribution to the worship services. We are glad that Don Hunt has joined the choir and that Steve Bottaro is back.
- Bob McKeown for keeping our website up to date.
- Lowville, our Joint Ministry partners, we have been ever so grateful for your help in so many ways. I was fortunate to have Allan Salmi as a mentor when I first started and then to have Bev Balch's support. I know she will be a good mentor for Barb McKeown as she takes on Chair of Nelson Council.

I know I started off with indicating I was having trouble starting this report. I realize I have possibly taken up more room than allowed. I just felt called to let these specific people and their ministry members know how much I appreciated their support and hard work over the last two years. Having said that I would be amiss if I did not include a big thank you to the congregation as a whole, your faithfulness and willingness to participate in worship as well as other Church functions I believe does bring "Christ into the World".

Yes we do need to plan for the future but with God's help, we will be ready and able to follow the plan He has for us.

God be with you Barb as you take over the chair. As I said at the beginning, it is an easy position because of all the faithful people you will have around you.

Thank You and God Bless,

Shirley Bottaro

(PS: If I have forgotten anyone I am indeed sorry but please know you are important and thanked.

An Exciting Learning Time Is Coming . . . To Lowville

Coming this fall! From "The Great Courses" of The Teaching Company, we are presenting "The Old Testament". Hear what scholar and professor Amy-Jill Levine has to say about these fascinating sacred stories. Then we will share as we talk about what we've heard.

No prior knowledge is required! It's an informal gathering. Stay tuned to your bulletin in September to find out the dates and times.

What About Children?

It's Tough being a parent when children face so many influences to act a certain way and own the right things. To teach them otherwise can seem like you're paddling upstream in your own small canoe.

Caring Community. We know you want your children to stay inquisitive, generous, and open-hearted. You want to protect them from the world yet not overly shelter them. A United Church can be another voice for your values—a community of generous and searching people who also want the best for your child.

Unique Gifts. The church works hard to appreciate people of all ages, from grandparents to newborns. Children aren't viewed as adults-in-waiting, nor are they on display for the amusement of the adults. They're full and welcome participants at the heart of each congregation, bringing ideas and unique talents that can inspire the entire church.

Growing in Faith. The United Church offers baptism to all ages. With children, instruction is given to parents or sponsors to equip them for the child's Christian nurture. During the ceremony, everyone in the congregation pledges support to be with you in that now considerably larger canoe.

Churches have Sunday school and, often, small groups that meet during the week for children to hear the stories of biblical ancestors such as Abraham and Sarah, Moses, David, Mary, and Martha; to study the spirit of Jesus' teachings; to discuss ethical situations or how to care for the environment. Often, in their teens, young people are given an opportunity to declare their faith in front of the congregation.

Surrounding your family with people of gentle and good influence who share your values might mean that, if a day should come when your child can't easily talk to you, church friends might be the next people he or she turns to.

Doors Open Burlington took place on Saturday & Sunday, June 12th & 13th at Lowville United. Thank you to all those that helped out on Saturday and Sunday to make Lowville such a welcoming venue for Burlington's first Doors Open Event.

Our guests really enjoyed the tea room manned by Ruth, Shirley and Marilyn. Nancy, Frances and Irma fielded questions and shared our history at the archives tables. George, John, Sonny, and Carol greeted folks at the doors and acted as guides.

Thank you to Rev. Barbara and the worship committee for creating such a music filled service that allowed our visitors to visit us during service time, and to Owen for creating the handouts and looking after the setup.

Our visitors were delighted with their time with us and we heard time and time again "What a lovely building we had and how welcome they felt".

On the Saturday, we had 91 visitors enter our doors and on the Sunday, we had 65 visitors. The cutoff time on Sunday was 12 pm but Doors Open Burlington had us listed as open until 3 pm and the visitors just kept coming.

We actually had more visitors than we had registered but some slipped out without having their passports stamped. The City of Burlington organizers are very pleased with the numbers. They hope that we will take part again next year. As well, they hope to expand the venues in the Lowville area and are looking for suggestions.

A Lowville United Church Treasure . . . . .

We have on our Lowville United Church property, a tree, planted some time ago possibly as a gift or as a memorial for someone. It is situated in line with the other dedicated trees and is the tree closest to Guelph Line near the Juniper shrubs. If anyone knows anything about how this tree got to where it is and for whom it was planted, please advise the author of the newsletter so that the information may be duly recorded.

The tree is a Ginkgo Biloba also known as a “Maidenhair Tree”. The leaf resembles the leaf-shape of a Maidenhair fern, hence the plant’s nickname, the Maidenhair tree. The name “Ginkgo” comes from the Japanese word “ginkyo”, or “silver apricot”, which describes the appearance of the fruit while “biloba” refers to the double-lobed, fan-shaped leaves. This tree is a survivor and very tolerant of a variety of growth conditions. The fossil record shows that the species has been existing for over 200 million years. It was only known as a fossil until it was re-discovered in China in 1691.

In the fall, the delicate conical-shaped tree is covered in unblemished, bright golden leaves that begin to fall and form a carpet on the grass. The fan-shaped leaves grow from the branches, each in a different direction, which is also unusual, and flutter in the wind like those on a poplar tree. Spur shoots, looking like large thorns, decorate the older stems and branches.

During the time of the dinosaurs, seed plants were well developed and were the most dominant vegetation on earth, especially the lush seed ferns, conifers and palmlike cycads. These primitive seed plants are not enclosed in a ripened fruit but are protected by cones or by a fleshy seed coat. Most gymnosperm plants of this type along with flowering plants, have both sexes on the same plant but the ginkgo is a dioecious gymnosperm, and the male and female are separate trees and it’s seeds have a fleshy outer layer. The Ginkgo and cycads are the only living seed-producing plants that have motile or free-swimming sperm.

Although the Ginkgo is more like a conifer than a deciduous broadleaf tree, it is neither, it has a unique position. Recent research suggests a much closer relationship to the cycads than to the conifers. You can distinguish a Ginkgo from other palm-like trees by it’s fan shaped and bilobed leaves. All Ginkgo trees have a relatively primitive vascular system. The veins continuously divide into two’s. This vein pattern is unique to the Ginkgo. Since our Ginkgo does not bear the fleshy fruit, we can safely assume that we have the male species of the tree.

Female trees produce seed that emit nauseating, volatile compounds when crushed or rotting, that are difficult to wash off the skin if touched, and may cause a rash in sensitized individuals. These compounds include butyric acid, and the mixture distinctly smells of vomit. Most nurseries sell only grafted male varieties that do not produce fruit, although the female trees do not bear until they have reached 20 years of age. However, you might want to take advantage of the fact that the nuts inside the smelly mess are edible. The interior kernel of the fruit is considered a delicacy by people of Chinese, Japanese, and southeast Asian descent. Contact dermatitis occurs in sensitive individuals when they remove the fleshy pulp from the seeds in the autumn. The crude extract contains a toxin that causes convulsions and death if used in excess.

The Ginkgo also produces peg-like structures along the trunk and branches that can grow into the ground and form roots as well as leafy branches above because of the embedded vegetative buds. These structures seem to be connected to traumatic events, environmental stress and individual properties of a tree. It is seen with old, but also with younger trees. It is thought that these buds, it’s resistance against diseases, it’s adaptability and individual properties of the tree, etc. contribute to the long history of the survival of the Ginkgo. The oldest living Ginkgo Biloba tree is 3500 years old.

The Ginkgo tree is particularly resistant to insect pests and to fungal, viral and bacterial diseases as well as to ozone and sulphur dioxide pollution, fire and even radioactive radiation like the atomic bomb. It never needs spraying. It can tolerate snow and ice storms. Research shows that the Ginkgo has no trouble adapting to greenhouse-effect conditions. The extract of the dried leaves is popular for their use as a diet supplement and herbal medicine for the brain, legs, eyes, heart and ears. Scientific studies show that good extracts may improve blood circulation, memory, prevent blood clotting, damage by free radicals and give an improved sense of well-being. The leaves are also used as tea for a variety of ailments.

We can learn a lot from this Ginkgo Biloba tree and should strive to protect it from any harm!
